

LEFT: Poster for 1946 serial Daughter of Don Q, starring Lorna Gray (a.k.a. Adrian Booth) as Dolores Quantero. The original Don Q Son of Zorro (1925) was the Douglas Fairbanks sequel to The Mark of Zorro (1920)

BELOW: Poster for The Legend of Zorro (2005), starring Catherine Zeta Jones and Antonio Banderas. Over the decades females effective at redressing injustices have taken significant roles in the Zorro cycle.

BELOW LEFT: Lobby card for 1944 Republic serial Zorro's Black Whip, in which a female noble bandit modeled on Zorro is played by Linda Stirling, one of the major stars of the sound-era serials.

BELOW RIGHT: Poster for Bandidas (2006), starring Penélope Cruz and Salma Hayek as sexy and seductive but also acrobatic and aggressive bandidas, billed as "the most explosive bank-robbing duo ever seen."
